Lithopolis gets its distinctive name from the Greek words "litho" and "polis" which, when translated together, mean "city of stone." This unique name is attributed to the village ravine, where Lithopolis free stone was once quarried. The Wagnalls Memorial Foundation, the town's treasure, is constructed of native free stone in the Tudor-Gothic style. This gem provides the community and its visitors with a center for educational, cultural and literary arts activities. We invite you to find yourself in Lithopolis. Stroll through town to glimpse wonderful examples of Pre-Civil War and early-1900 architecture. Enjoy the natural beauty of Ravine Park. Browse a wonderful selection of quaint shops catering to a variety of tastes.
